

MARK TOTH, MARTIAL ARTS CV

BACKGROUND

Mark Toth began learning traditional-style Japanese martial arts at Futen Dojo, Milwaukee, WI in 1993. At the request of his teacher, Kyoshi Michael Coleman, Mr. Toth began to assume a leadership role in 2002 when he created a club system (Kobudo Club) to promote Genbukan martial arts at Wisconsin universities. The first club was registered at Marquette University in 2002 and by 2004, clubs had been established at three Wisconsin universities. In 2003, Grandmaster Tanemura awarded Mr. Toth the organizational title, Group Leader, and in 2005, Dojocho (School Chief/Director). Until 2008, Mr. Toth taught weekly martial arts classes at Marquette University and occasional Jujutsu seminars at several other Milwaukee colleges and universities.

Today, Mr. Toth operates a traditional-style Japanese martial arts school, Unryu Dojo, located in south-eastern Pennsylvania. He welcomes adults of any age or ability to join him on the Old Martial Way – a journey of self-discovery and continuous improvement guided by traditional bushi values and discipline.
